Team Build Days

Team Builds with Habitat for Humanity provide a unique, fun and rewarding experience for any group. No previous construction skills are needed and Habitat will provide the tools and training you need for success.

During a day on the job site, your team will work alongside a Habitat partner family to help them build their home. Group construction tasks offer great opportunities to strengthen workplace skills.

Your work day will help your team:

- Build and strengthen relationships
- Create memories
- Improve communication
- Build trust
- Develop leadership skills
- Demonstrate your organization's commitment to community building
- Foster goodwill by helping others

By participating in a Team Build, your team will play an important role in helping to break the cycle of poverty, strengthening our community, and building a brighter future for a local family.

Who Are We?

Rogue Valley Habitat for Humanity was formed in 1987 under the umbrella of Habitat for Humanity International, which has been operating since 1976. Since then, we have partnered with more than 72 local families to build simple and sustainable homes in Jackson County, OR. The homes are sold to our partner families at no profit with an affordable monthly mortgage payment.

Additional ways our business community gives back

Employee matching gift programs allocate corporate dollars to causes that their employees are passionate about.

Corporations do this by matching donations to nonprofits that their employees support. Typically, companies with these programs match donations dollar for dollar - effectively doubling employee contributions. It's a win-win situation for everyone:

- Employees can double their donations to organizations they care about.
- Nonprofits receive additional funding without having to attract new donors.
- Corporations can offer a benefit that employees appreciate, receive tax benefits, and can give back to a diverse set of nonprofits.

Matching gift programs are based on the idea that taking a bottoms-up approach works for corporate philanthropy. With over 65 percent of Fortune 500 companies offering these programs, including many of the nation's leading employers, some of your donors or members undoubtedly work for companies that will match their donations.

DOES YOUR COMPANY OFFER A DOLLAR FOR DOER PROGRAMS

Our organization rely on a regular base of volunteers. If your company has a dollar for doer programs. Your employees would be eligible to participate.

This grant program is set up by corporations to encourage their employees to volunteer within their communities. Although not as prevalent as matching gift programs, almost 40 percent of Fortune 500 companies offer a volunteer grant program, do you?

The typical structure provides grants of around $10 - $15 per volunteer hour as long as an employee volunteers with the organization on a regular basis (for instance, 20+ hours in a year).

PAID-RELEASE DAYS

Do you offer your employees a few paid release day each year, where it allows an employee or many employees to spend a day or two volunteering during normal work hours while on the company payroll?

NON-CASH DONATIONS (In-Kind)

Although most companies provide cash donations, some companies prefer to give back to communities in other ways. A typical example is a manufacturing company that can offer a greater benefit to organizations through product donations rather than cash contributions.

For instance, food manufacturers are one of the largest suppliers of food to food pantries. Lumber companies give building materials for charities such as Habitat for Humanity.

On a more local level, make sure you're asking local businesses to sponsor events.

The Win/Win of Event Sponsorship

1. There are many business benefits of sponsorship, but here are the most common:
2. Attracting customers to a brand and keeping them interested.
3. Distinguishing the company's brand from competitor brands.
4. Changing or strengthening a brand image by humanizing it.
5. Improving company or product awareness and visibility
6. Driving customers to a retail store or a particular product.
7. Showing community responsibility, or corporate social responsibility
8. Getting more involved with a community.
9. Building the company's credibility and educating the public about its products and services
10. Persuading the public to sample a new product or to demonstrate a new product or service
11. Entertaining key clients (can be substantial when sponsoring cultural or athletic events)
12. Targeting a particular market.
13. Recruiting, retaining or motivating employees
14. Nurturing talent and teaching new skills to employees

COMPANY WIDE DAY OF SERVICE EVENTS

Consider partnering with Habitat for Humanity in a company-wide day of service.

These events require an immense amount of pre-event coordination, but if you can pull it off, your organization can benefit from a large group of skilled volunteers. As an added benefit, companies also frequently provide funding for these events.

One tip for organizations looking to pull these events off successfully is to design appropriate sized chunks of work that can be finished by groups of company employees in a single day.
